

OBERLIN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

OBERLIN PUBLIC SCHOOLS TIMELINE

- 1834 The Oberlin School District is organized for public education.
- 1836 The first one room ungraded school building is built at a cost of $215. (It still stands today, owned and operated by O.H.I.O.)
- 1851 The First Union School House, a two-story, graded school, is built on Professor Street.
- 1857 John M. Langston becomes the acting manager of the Oberlin Schools.
- 1860 At the recommendation of J. M. Langston the Oberlin Board of Education of Common Schools is established in accordance with the laws laid out in 1853. John Mercer Langston is chosen to be secretary and, as notary public, swears in the other members.
- 1867 The official opening of the school year is moved from the spring to the fall from this point on in order to give the students this year an extra semester to catch up their skills to be really ready to move up to the next level.
- 1874 Union High School is built on South Main Street (next known as Westervelt Hall and now as the New Union School House).
- 1895 Alice Swing is elected the first woman on the Oberlin School Board and is among the first women to be on any Ohio school board.
- 1887 Prospect and Pleasant Street schools are both built. Each is a two-story, brick building with four class rooms and an office. Each cost $8000.
- 1903 A fourth year is added to Oberlin High School, thus it is now ranked a "first grade" school.
- 1903 Both Pleasant and Prospect schools suffer serious fires.
- 1909 Oberlin Board of Education authorized the transfer of nearly 200 volumes to the Oberlin College Library. (Annual Report of College, 1909-10, p. 258.
- 1910 The P. T. A. of Pleasant Street School is organized to "study the welfare of the child in the home, school, and community and to create a better mutual understanding between parents and teachers."

OBERLIN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

- 1913 The Board abolishes the Office of the Treasurer as required by law where school funds are handled by a Depository, in this case the Peoples Banking Co. of Oberlin.
- 1921 The Bureau of Inspection of the State Industrial Commission says the Main Street school cannot be used after Sept. 1, 1921 without extensive repairs and modifications.
- 1923 The new high school at Walnut, North Main and Pleasant Streets is open.
- 1926 Oberlin High School Basketball team wins a State Championship.
- 1934 Centennial Hall, on South Main Street, comes into the possession of the Oberlin Public Schools and is used until 1952.
- 1949 The Oberlin Ohio Education Association is established and writes its constitution.
- 1950 The Oberlin School Board hires a man as an elementary teacher for the first time--Donald McIlroy.
- 1954 Oberlin High School hosts its first foreign exchange student, Miss Marjo Heino of Finland.
- 1955 Eastwood School is built on East College Street.
- 1957 The Oberlin School Board joins the Ohio School Boards Association.
- 1959 Students in all Oberlin school buildings are grouped by grades. No more neighborhood schools.
- 1962 The current high school is built on North Pleasant Street with further additions made in the 1960s, '70s, and '80s.
- 1962 OHS is one of 132 schools in Ohio accredited without qualification.
- 1963 OOEA establishes a budget.
- 1970 The ORBIT program begins at the elementary level.
- 1972 The Title I reading program begins.
- 1975 OOEA develops and tightens up the teacher evaluation and dismissal process.

OBERLIN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

- 1976 Task forces of community people are set up by a community group brought together by the Oberlin Ministerial Association on behalf of the board of education.
- 1986 The Oberlin High School basketball team wins a State Basketball Championship.
- 1992 The Blue Ribbon Finance Committee, made up of community people, researches and decides that the schools' financial problems are caused by a lag in tax collection and ceaseless inflation. It recommends the district may need to consider merging.
- 1993 Superintendent Charles Edelsberg gets an Outstanding Superintendent acknowledgment nationwide--and at the end of the school year resigns from working in public education altogether.
- 1994 Oberlin gets its first female and first Black superintendent, Ms. Shirley Vioni.
- 1998 The high school gets its first female and first Black principal, Mrs. Rosalyn Valentine.
- 1996 James Grey named interim Superintendent.
- 1997 James Grey named Superintendent.
- 2002 Beverly Reep named Superintendent.
- 2005 Beverly Reep resigns in December.
- 2006 Dennis Rectenwald named interim Superintendent until a permanent replacement can be found.
